

MADE HIS PILE IN A MINE.

SALTON CAMERON, ONCE WEALTHY, DIES IN A POORHOUSE.

He Made a Million in the Cable Mine, but British Ruler of California—Turquoise in Nevada—Mexico's Wonderful Resources.

BUTTE, Nov. 23.—Salton Cameron, a few years ago a millionaire miner of this State, is now in the poorhouse at Deer Lodge, broken in health and in fortune. Mr. Cameron made a princely fortune out of the Cable mine in Deer Lodge county in the early seventies. He was the first to discover the property, but was the first to discover its great richness. The mine was discovered by three sailors. They had been on the steamship Great Eastern, and were among the crew that landed the Atlantic cable. They sailed around the Cape of Good Hope, in elanco, and procured a permit to work on the present site of the Cable mine. In the water they saw "colors," and found several pieces of rich-looking black rock. They traced this up until they found the ledge, and located their claim, calling it the Atlantic Cable.

Some time after Salton Cameron bought the mine for a trifling sum from the sailors, and took out a million dollars. The mine is now owned by J. C. Sawyer, who bought it from Cameron, and it is still producing gold in large quantities. Cameron spent most of his wealth in drink, and in the end he was left with nothing but the pockets of the Cable mine, which he took to the World's Fair for being the richest collection of gold specimens taken out of one mine.

An eighteen-inch vein of first-class coal is reported to have been struck on Sheep Creek, near Cascade.

A large pocket of silver-gold ore has been encountered in the Britannia, in the western part of this city. The ore runs $8 in gold and 100 ounces in silver.

Several good-looking specimens of gold quartz have been brought down from the Summit at the head of Birch Creek. The first was found five miles from where the lead was discovered.

The Copper Queen property at Mineral Hill has been bonded to Eastern Men for $150,000, and the Ravalli, Lincoln Club, and Florence End Lodes have been bonded to the same men for $50,000.

Near Elkhorn recently Mr. James Rowe found some stagnant water in which were immersed several tin cans. It was found that the cans were coated with precipitated copper similar to the metal thrown into the elements of the Anaconda and St. Lawrence mines in Butte. It is supposed that some undiscovered copper mine in the vicinity is leaking.

Such has been the case this season in the development of the Toston Coal mines on Six Mile Creek, between Toston and Townsend. While the mines have been worked but a few months, a superior article of coal is being taken out. An incline shaft has been run a distance of 300 feet into the coal measures 150 feet from the surface, passing through strata of coal and rock. Cross-cutting is now being done across the coal measures, which lie about six feet apart. The coal is canal coal, like the canal coal of Pennsylvania and Illinois. It burns readily, and throws out good heat.

CALIFORNIA.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20.—Manufacturers and dealers in mining machinery all over California report that their business is three times as great as it was last year. Nearly all the orders are for development machinery. The demand for machinery for hydraulic plants about a great increase.

The litigation which has hampered the development of the great copper property in the county, and the richest property in that district, has finally been settled by compromise. The original owner, the American Copper Company, has again in uncontested possession. They will change the name of the property to the American Copper Company. The property embraces twenty claims. Ore has been developed to a depth of 1,000 feet. The ore is of high grade, but there are also immense bodies of low-grade ore that can be profitably worked as reduced to a lower grade.

Notwithstanding the legal fight it has paid for its own development from the grass roots, and yield good profit besides.

The shaft brothers, near Colvilleville, Mariposa county, have struck an eight-foot vein of ore at a depth of 100 feet. The cost of construction of the San Joaquin Valley Railroad has made possible the opening up of a good many low-grade claims.

The Unity mine, Nevada county, reports a clean-up of $1,940 on ore that paid $13.50 per ton, after a three weeks' run. The morning shift, and the afternoon shift, has declared a dividend of 80 per share.

The mining districts of southern California have developed a new vein of ore. This is especially true of the Riverside county region, where operations were never so lively as they are now. The new vein is of high grade, and will be put in operation during the next month.

Jose R. Grant and ex-Senator Stephen M. Dorsey, with two English experts, have gone to the Pecos River, New Mexico, to make a thorough examination. If the country of the experts is favorable plenty of English money will be made in the Pecos River.

A new contrivance for raising ore from a mine, has been put in operation by A. G. Gault. It is a simple contrivance, and is of great diameter at the top and five feet at the bottom, which is lowered from a boat to the bottom of the river. Compressed air is used to operate the water and is also used to elevate the gravel through a pipe to the deck of the boat, where it is raised to the surface by a hoist.

The McEllis mine, near Hamilton, is shipping ore in bulk to the port of San Francisco. The ore is of high grade, and is being shipped in bulk to the port of San Francisco.

The Kaakana mine, Tuolumne county, has made a very good strike in which the rock averages $15 per ton to the surface.

NEVADA.

VIRGINIA CITY, Nov. 20.—Turquoise has been discovered in Lincoln county at the foot of Sage Leaf Peak. The turquoise is of high grade, and is being shipped in bulk to the port of San Francisco.

The Gold Creek and Nevada Mining Company, in a placer working at Gold Creek, has discovered a new vein of ore. The ore is of high grade, and is being shipped in bulk to the port of San Francisco.

The McEllis mine, near Hamilton, is shipping ore in bulk to the port of San Francisco. The ore is of high grade, and is being shipped in bulk to the port of San Francisco.

At Bullwinkle the Pecks are preparing to work 200,000 tons of the Gold tailings.

MEXICO.

GUAYMAS, Nov. 20.—Mexico is bound to become in time one of the great mining centers of the world. In the north the sulphide ore runs 25 per cent. in gold. In the southern part of the republic the sulphide ore runs 75 per cent. and the ore is exceedingly refractory.

Along the crest of the Sierras is a continuous succession of mineral veins, with sulphide ore, and the greatest opportunities for American enterprise are to be found in the Sierras. In the south, a few iron mines are in operation, and a few iron mines are in operation, and a few iron mines are in operation.

LOCKED IN THE ARCTIC ICE.

ELEVEN NEW ENGLAND MEN WITH THE WHALERS OFF POINT BARROW.

Most of Them Have Had Experience in Wintering in the Frozen North and Their Friends Are Not Concerned So Much for Their Safety as for the Bear Baiting Party.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 23.—Locked in the Arctic ice off Point Barrow, Alaska, the eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

The eleven New England men with the whalers off Point Barrow, Alaska, are not concerned so much for their safety as for the bear baiting party.

SINKERS LEFT OFF THE SLATE.

He Voted for Both Ross-Perkins and Croker
and Made a Name for Himself.

When Sarsapilla, Reilly walked into the little restaurant on Park row the Sinker Man dropped an oyster pie on the kitchen floor and exclaimed:

"Aoh my, can I believe myself, is dot you Reilly, Reilly, I thought you were dead or dot you back to Ireland. There you been so long."

"Lakewood," said Reilly; "me an' Croker went there ter fix th' slate."

"That did Croker and you did?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Fixed th' slate," answered Reilly; "we jist made up th' list av people wh'ol run Great New York for th' next four years."

"Put up der names of dem which will git job?"

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I'vey name is a first-tortured Democrat who wudn't give up th' said ship."

"Did you mark me down?" asked Sarsapilla.

"You were a know-nothin' in th' campaign," said Reilly.

"That were I?"

"A know-nothin'—a fellow what knew nothin' about what was votin' an' knov' nothin' about what was ter happen. Sure you voted for th' Citi' Union."

"Never mind his name," said Reilly; "he has nothin' to do with votin' on it. It was th' Citi' Union, an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

SINKERS LEFT OFF THE SLATE.

He Voted for Both Ross-Perkins and Croker
and Made a Name for Himself.

When Sarsapilla, Reilly walked into the little restaurant on Park row the Sinker Man dropped an oyster pie on the kitchen floor and exclaimed:

"Aoh my, can I believe myself, is dot you Reilly, Reilly, I thought you were dead or dot you back to Ireland. There you been so long."

"Lakewood," said Reilly; "me an' Croker went there ter fix th' slate."

"That did Croker and you did?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Fixed th' slate," answered Reilly; "we jist made up th' list av people wh'ol run Great New York for th' next four years."

"Put up der names of dem which will git job?"

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I'vey name is a first-tortured Democrat who wudn't give up th' said ship."

"Did you mark me down?" asked Sarsapilla.

"You were a know-nothin' in th' campaign," said Reilly.

"That were I?"

"A know-nothin'—a fellow what knew nothin' about what was votin' an' knov' nothin' about what was ter happen. Sure you voted for th' Citi' Union."

"Never mind his name," said Reilly; "he has nothin' to do with votin' on it. It was th' Citi' Union, an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

"You voted for it?" asked Sarsapilla.

"Yis," said Reilly, "an' I voted for it."

CHAPPELLE'S NEW POST.

ARCHBISHOP OF NEW ORLEANS.

President Faure of France said to have suggested it at the request of the French Government, the late Archbishop of New Orleans, M. de Lamoignon, has been elected to the post of Archbishop of New Orleans.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The news of the appointment of Archbishop Chappelle of Santa Fé, N. M., as Archbishop of New Orleans, has been the cause of much comment in Catholic circles, and was a great surprise to many who had expected that Bishop Macarty would be appointed.

The French priests of New Orleans feared that they were not to receive the appointment, so they wrote a letter to the daughter of M. Faure, President of France, in which they begged her to use her influence with her father to secure the appointment of an Archbishop of their own nationality. The daughter did so, and the letter was forwarded to Rome, with the approval of M. Faure, and the appointment of Mgr. Chappelle is due to this as much as to anything.

As might be expected, the Catholics who are strongly American do not look on this move with favor. They are beginning to dread foreign interference. Having just recovered from the interference of the Germans and the Jesuits in the case of Mgr. Schroeder, they are again made to feel the powerful hand of the foreign lobby at Rome by the appointment of Mgr. Chappelle. While they are agreed that he is well equipped for the place, they could not overlook the interference of M. Faure.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

There has been much discussion about the port of M. de Lamoignon, the Spanish Minister, and his secretary to Mgr. Martinielli, the Apostolic Delegate, and requested him to use his influence to have the letters of M. de Lamoignon, former Minister to Spain, delivered at the Catholic University, discontinued. While this appears to be a reasonable request, Mgr. Martinielli has not yet received any word from M. de Lamoignon, concerning it, there seems to be some foundation for it, and it is probable that if Minister de Lamoignon did not make such a suggestion in so many words, the intimation was conveyed through his secretary to an attaché of the delegation at the Vatican, and from there to the Catholic University.

COPYRIGHTED 1897.

HOW HE GOT HIS APPOINTMENT AS
ARCHBISHOP OF NEW ORLEANS.